

Medical writer consultant Market Access & Pricing

LatticePoint is seeking a medical writer to work as part of a team of market access and pricing consultants based in Geneva, Switzerland.

About LatticePoint

LatticePoint is a boutique consulting firm that focuses on pricing and market access for innovative medicines and medical devices. We support our clients to plan for the political, scientific, and financial realities that will be relevant for negotiating access of their pharmaceutical product to countries with regulated reimbursement systems. We work with biopharma companies and investors to help define, negotiate, and defend the value of their products in key markets around the world.

Working at LatticePoint allows consultants to gain broad exposure to the biopharmaceutical industry, healthcare services and reimbursement authorities.

Job description

Are you a medical writer looking to branch out into market access? Can you demonstrate excellent analytical and problem-solving skills? Are you proficient in technical writing, have attention to detail, and are you comfortable interacting with clients? Do you like working in a dynamic, team-oriented environment? Then join LatticePoint Consulting for a unique challenge as the next step in your career.

Responsibilities

Medical writers are responsible for achieving multiple client-driven objectives in an overarching project by synthesizing primary and secondary research into convincing and relevant insights for the client.

As a medical writer, you would take lead responsibility for the strategic planning and medical writing of key deliverables such as global value dossiers, national reimbursement applications, manuscripts, posters, and other value-based communication materials.

Qualifications and skills

- PhD, PharmD or MD.
- 3+ years of experience in medical writing in English. Any other language would be a plus.
- Prior experience in regulatory or medical affairs would be a strong asset.
- Strong written and verbal communication skills, and conversant on key issues in relevant therapeutic areas.
- Strong interpersonal and organizational skills
- Pro-active attitude and ability to prioritize and focus time effectively to meet project goals.
- A valid working permit or Swiss/EU-citizenship
- Flexibility and adaptability to internal and external change

Experience

LatticePoint is open to candidates without explicit experience in market access, pricing, and reimbursement. Any experience in this field would be considered a strong asset.

To apply please send your CV and cover letter to recruitment@latticepointconsulting.com

LatticePoint is not accepting unsolicited assistance from third party search firms or recruiters for this employment opportunity.